Synopsis:

This love story has Kitty meeting young, intelligent, shy and somewhat dull Dr. Walter Fane, whose forte is the study of infectious diseases, and the convenient marriage that she finds herself committed to. It is in this web of intrigue that they head for China, only after Walter discovers Kitty's infidelity with one dashing and witty diplomat Charlie Townsend. So much as to hide her from herself and to help thwart a cholera outbreak, this is a marriage more than on the rocks. This is a cold, indifferent and loveless partnership in a vast unknown and deadly environment that will test both these flightless lovebirds and with the hardships and tolerances more than any had ever anticipated. A visual delight amid the pain and suffering of a dying people and failing marriage. Will a cure be found for both, before it's too late?

The title comes from a sonnet by renowned poet Shelley. One of the most famous novels of Somerset Maugham. Excellent cinematography. Memorable acting by Naomi Watts and Edward Norton. A notable screenplay giving correct justice to the story telling style of Maugham. It is a treat to watch the dialogues between Naomi Watts and Edward Norton. Later, Naomi gave birth to sons while in relationship with the co-star in the film Liev Schreiber.

Tag Line: Sometimes the greatest journey is the distance between two persons. Forgiveness comes at a price, at times too late and too costly.
