About the film:

A modern dramedy about the quest for love and meaning in contemporary Oslo. It chronicles four years in the life of Julie, a young woman who navigates the troubled waters of her love life and struggles to find her career path, leading her to take a realistic look at who she really is.

Joachim Trier's statement for the film: "For a long time I have wanted to make a film about love. One that goes a bit deeper than normal onscreen love stories, where everything is so simple, the stories so clear-cut, the feelings so admirably unambiguous. A film that will look seriously at the difficulties of meeting someone when you're struggling to figure out your own life; at how irresolute and uncertain even the most rational and otherwise self-confident people can become when they fall in love; and how complicated it is, even for romantics, when they actually get what they have been dreaming about."

Trivia about the Film:

One of former President Barack Obama's 14 Favorite Films of the Year 2021.

Prior to the movie, Renate Reinsve was ready to give up on acting to pursue a career in carpentry.

The film was Norway's official entry in the International Film Oscar race.

Vanity Fair and The Atlantic declared "The Worst Person in the World" to be the "Best Movie of 2021.

Peter Bradshaw of The Guardian described the film as "one of Cannes' best" and "an instant classic".
